

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.

+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.

+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.

+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. THE Illinois Soldiers' and Sailors' Home is located on a tract of 222 acres, adjoining the city of Quincy on the north. The ground is on a plateau extending west to the Mississippi River, partly wooded, lying between two creeks, and affording a beautiful site for such an institution. Water, gas and electric light, are supplied from the city. The Wabash and C. B. & Q. R. R. have a station on the premises.

The Home was opened in March, 1887; since which time there have been 2,846 admissions, and there are now on the rolls 1,348; present, 996; absent, 352. The Home is distinguished by its unique and perfect sewerage system by which the sewage of a town of 1,500 people is quickly and inoffensively disposed of by means of a series of eight shallow earth-basins of 75 by 180 feet, lying along the south bank of Cedar Creek in the Home grounds, from which the filtered sewage water is discharged, bright and sparkling as spring water into the creek, through deep underlying tile drains. In the main building—built of stone—are the business offices of the Superintendent and his staff, and the quarters for the officers, and the assembly hall, the court, library, reception, reading and billiard rooms.

There are here seventeen brick cottages, built to accommodate 1,000 men—and 1,200 when crowded to the utmost. The Hospital is a spacious brick building consisting of a main building and two long wings, forming three sides of a square, three stories high, and has room for 125 patients or more.

The boiler house has a battery of ten boilers. and there are four elsewhere. This building contains the laundry, machine and carpenter shop, general kitchen, warehouse, bakery, the butchers and cold storage rooms. The barns and stables are substantial buildings of wood and brick, well adapted to their uses. There are here in all thirty-one buildings, besides hot houses, tool houses and other minor buildings.

A peculiar feature of this Home is its method of food distribution. The meals are cooked in a general kitchen, and carried, hot, in closed two-wheeled carts, over a stone way to the separate cottages, each of which has its own cart and its own serving and dining room.

The following is a list of the officials of the Home, as they stand at this date, August 31st, 1894:
